

Digital Film 2.0: Just One Month to Go

There's just one month left to sign up for the annual Think and a Drink conference, where you'll hear from film, television and new media visionaries – including Channel 4's New Media Commissioner and film futurist Matt Hanson...

Date: Thursday 20 September 2007

Time: 2pm - 6pm

Location: The Sage Gateshead

Cost: Free to Codeworks Connect members; £75 +VAT non-members (usual DWN discount applies)Already, more than 130 people have signed up attend the conference – subtitled 'Digital Film 2.0' – on 20 September at the Sage Gateshead, so register soon to avoid missing out.At the conference, delegates will be treated to a range of compelling keynotes and fiery debates on the issues affecting new media, film, and television companies, including: The impact of High Definition Web streaming IPTV Vodcasting And much more Joining Channel 4's Adam Gee and Matt Hanson of Visual Intelligence Agency will be Marek Walton of film/videogame scriptwriting firm The Mustard Corporation along with Sam Morton and Nick Imrie of film firm Twenty First Century Media. Following the conference, delegates will head over to the Pitcher and Piano bar on Newcastle Quayside for the official wrap party, with complimentary food, drinks and networking. Sign up nowPlaces are limited for Digital Film 2.0 (and running out fast) so register online now for this unique conference. Or, for more information, call Helen Vickers on 0191 556 1122 or email helen.vickers@codeworks.net